
Concept M-3

Many managers deliver strong performance during economic expansion, but only those with an informed view of the macro environment and likely future conditions can continue to deliver when the market turns. These managers are able to distinguish between cyclical and structural changes and position themselves to outperform across all phases of the economic cycle.

MetLife Investment Management Real Estate provides clients the confidence to achieve their investment goals through market cycles by combining our proprietary real estate research capabilities and with our local market knowledge through our network of 11 fully integrated regional offices allowing us to understand where to take intelligent risks. This time-tested approach was developed through 140+ years of real estate investments experience and leverages a team of more than 80 senior professionals with an average of 24 years in the industry.

MIM leverages a collaborative client approach to develop tailored real estate debt and equity investment solutions that fit your specific portfolio needs. Every client has access to a dedicated portfolio manager to help them navigate changing market conditions through active partnership and a single-point client relationship manager to deliver proactive communication and high touch client service.
